

Award-Winning Film Screening: EVEREST: A CLIMB FOR PEACE

Friday, October 30th
at Berkeley Ironworks Climbing Gym

Refreshments at 8 pm

Movie & presentation start at 9 pm

Prize drawing after movie

All are welcome, donations appreciated!

Lance Trumbull, the Director and Producer, will be here for a Q&A after the film!

Share your love of the mountains by supporting the preservation of an endangered culture.

Narrated by Orlando Bloom and hailed as a “tremendous achievement” by the Dalai Lama. Everest: A Climb for Peace is not just a typical Everest film, but a socially relevant documentary about peace, war, and the human spirit - an inspirational film, which has some of the most incredible Everest footage ever shot, including a dramatic rescue near the summit.

For forty years, the Tibetan Aid Project (TAP) has dedicated its efforts to restoring and preserving Tibet’s cultural and spiritual heritage. TAP’s all volunteer staff works to fund the production, shipment, and distribution of sacred texts at the annual World Peace Ceremony in Bodh Gaya, India. More than 2.5 million books have been given away to monks, nuns, and lay people across the Himalayan region.

All proceeds benefit the Tibetan Aid Project.

Sponsors:

THE CHEESE BOARD

Help us make this a sustainable event by biking, carpooling, or taking public transit (Bus 9 stops 1 block east of Ironworks!) and we'd love if you'd bring your own cup. Alcohol will be available for those not climbing, so remember your i.d.

www.tibetanaidproject.org